

Vulnerable Young Children will Now Receive Uninterrupted Services

Jessica is a four year old with cerebral palsy who only knows a handful of words. Yet just six months ago, Jessica was making great progress through vital treatments she was receiving through the regional center. She was counting her fingers, naming letters and developing her vocabulary. Then Jessica moved from a foster home to her grandmother's care in another city. While the move was a win for Jessica's long-term stability, it halted her treatments. This is an injustice the Alliance has seen time and time again--foster children change placements and their development gets derailed.

Finally, this will change. Governor Jerry Brown signed AB 1089 (Calderon) into law, which ensures young children with developmental disabilities and delays speedily resume services when they move to a new foster home. Through our persistent efforts and urging, the Alliance is pleased that there is now a clear process and timeline in place, which promises to keep kids on track for success. Read More>

We had many finalists, and this year's tournament champ was Peter Lizotte. Every year, Tennis for Tots is held in memory of David and Lynn Angell and is generously hosted by Alliance Board Member Mitch Kaplan and Elliot Stahler of the Kaplan Stahler Agency.
